Together with Landcom, the City is building Green Square Town Centre into a sustainable urban renewal project.

I invite you to a special Public Domain Design Workshop to provide input into the concepts which will shape the public spaces in the Town Centre.

A network of parks, open spaces and new community facilities, including a library, community centre and an aquatic centre are planned.

The City of Sydney and Landcom are committed to creating a Town Centre with the highest standards of design excellence and sustainability.

Join us and our designers to discuss how we can deliver public spaces reflecting the character of the area and the needs of the community.

PROJECT UPDATE

The Green Square Town Centre (GSTC) project will see $1.7 billion invested in 14 hectares of under-utilised land around Green Square Railway Station.

Completion of the new Local Environment Plan (LEP) and Development Control Plan (DCP) for the Town Centre in 2006 was a significant milestone for the project.

The development of the Town Centre will occur over coming years, and we are now focusing on the detailed design of the new streets, parks, plazas and community facilities.

The City of Sydney is committed to ensuring sustainable and environmentally-friendly outcomes for the public domain.

The partnership between the City and Landcom enables the delivery of this project. In years to come, GSTC will be a vibrant new urban hub for entertainment, shopping, restaurants, cultural and community activities.

HAVE YOUR SAY

Two Public Domain Design Workshops give the local community an opportunity to provide input into the design of new parks, plazas and community facilities within the Town Centre.

A series of concept options for the public spaces will be developed and placed on public exhibition. Help shape the identity of the new spaces by coming to tell us:

- how you wish to use the public domain spaces
- how local history can be recognised through the design of the public spaces
- what gives Green Square its distinct and unique identity
- the elements of local character which are important to you.
