Sharing Our Stories

What are the unique experiences of living with multiple identities and between two diverse communities? What does 'coming out' as gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgender, intersex or queer mean within multicultural families and communities?

People from multicultural backgrounds are diverse in their genders, sexuality and sexual practices. Although their experiences and needs are increasingly acknowledged, many of their stories remain invisible and unheard.

In partnership with a range of community organisations, the City of Sydney is hosting a community forum to explore sexual and gender diversity in multicultural communities and to celebrate their journeys and strengths.

Join us for a film screening of Tony Ayres' "China Dolls" * and hear personal stories and experiences in the field from a panel of speakers including youth, family, artists, practitioners and service providers. There will be a facilitated discussion and workshops on religion, sexuality, gender diversity, arts & culture, rights & politics, multicultural GLBTIQ young people, the Australian GLBTIQ Multicultural Council and diversity in community care for older people, people with a disability and their carers. There will also be an exhibition featuring artworks from local artists who work in this area and a chance to find out about available services and network with service providers, community leaders and organisations.
