"He saw a world of lovers forever parted of dreams never consummated of plans that never turned into reality. He saw a world of dead fathers and crippled brothers and crazy screaming sons. He saw a world of armless mothers clasping headless babies to their breasts trying to scream out their grief from throats that were cancerous with gas. He saw starved cities black and cold and motionless in the midst of a dead terrible world."

Dalton Trumbo, Johnny Get Your Gun, 1939.

This is what war looked like in World War I. It is still what war looks like today. Every human being alive knows this. In 2003, 35 million people demonstrated against the impending war on Iraq. Our elected leaders refused to listen and the war began. To date, more than one million people have died.

When The Word Said NO To War is a photographic exhibition of the 2003 demonstrations. Pine Street Gallery, 64 Pine Street, Chippendale from the 9th to the 23rd February. John Pilger will speak at the auction of the images on the 14th February, 4-8pm. Come and celebrate this historic coming together of humanity for peace.
