Part 5: Signage and street awnings

Under the State Environmental Planning Policy (Exempt and Complying Development Codes 2008 (the "SEPP")) some signs can be erected without development consent, subject to meeting prescribed 'development standards' which are listed in the SEPP.

Alterations to existing street awnings and the installation of new awnings are also permitted under the SEPP where the development standards are satisfied, together with compliance with the City's Awnings Policy.

One of the prescribed development standards in the SEPP requires that approval must be obtained from the City to install signage and awnings over a public road, including footways. In addition to obtaining an approval through the lodgement of this application, approval by way of a complying development certificate (CDC) must also be obtained for:

- alterations to existing street awnings;
- installation of new street awnings;
- installation of projecting wall signs; and
- installation of freestanding pylon and directory board signs.

A CDC cannot be issued until an approval is granted by the City to allow signs or awnings to be installed or altered where located above a footway.

CDCs can be issued by either the City or a private accredited certifier. If you wish, a CDC application can be lodged together with this application for concurrent assessment (and approval). CDC applications can be lodged online via the NSW Planning Portal at <https://www.planningportal.nsw.gov.au/>

Further details on the SEPP controls are available on the NSW State Government legislation website: <http://www.legislation.nsw.gov.au>
