Policy Statement

Modern Slavery is a human rights violation and a serious crime, it has a horrific personal impact on the millions of people subjected to it around the world. In addition to obligations under the Modern Slavery Laws, the City of Sydney has an ethical, reputational and financial imperative to act to prevent Modern Slavery in all its forms and to set the highest possible standards of compliance and reporting as a result. The safeguarding of human rights is important to us for long term risk mitigation and sustainability, the City of Sydney will act to safeguard human rights with the outsourced providers we work with in our supply chains.

Caring for our communities, our environment and our people is at the heart of our purpose and values at the City of Sydney.

We aim to be an ethical and responsible procurer of goods and services. We operate in diverse and complex supply chains across hundreds of categories. The Modern Slavery risks across these categories are varied. Accordingly, we take a people centred, risk-based approach to addressing Modern Slavery within our supply chains.

We strive for continuous improvement in our approach to Modern Slavery and will work collaboratively with key stakeholders and Suppliers to review and improve our practices.

Supply Chain

The ability of the City of Sydney to impact and leverage its supply chains is varied across categories. The City of Sydney recognises that it has spend in high-risk categories and aims to apply its resources to those areas of significant salient risk of Modern Slavery where the risks to people are high and it can make the most difference.

We will engage with our suppliers to understand the risk of Modern Slavery in their supply chains and business operations, and then work with them in a number of ways to mitigate Modern Slavery risks, taking into account our leverage, the level of risk, and their existing approach to Modern Slavery risk. This would range from working closely with those we have leverage with, through finding ways to influence where we don't, and as a last resort consider exiting arrangements where the supplier is unable or unwilling to address Modern Slavery risks or concerns. The City of Sydney will create a roadmap of the City's future approach and requirements in a three-year Modern Slavery Implementation Plan aligned with the seven steps of the NSW Anti-slavery Commissioner's Guidance on Reasonable Steps. The Implementation Plan will be iterative and evolve to take into consideration amendments to the Guidance on Reasonable Steps, changes to identified risks, emerging risks, and changes in our supply chain. Specifically, the City of Sydney will:

1. seek to build our Modern Slavery expertise, through collaborating and working with relevant government agencies, peak bodies and experts;
2. take steps to understand how its different roles, processes and contracting practices increase or mitigate the risk of Modern Slavery;
3. take reasonable steps to identify Modern Slavery risks in its supply chain, including the extent of those risks and take action to manage or minimise them;
4. engage with Suppliers to understand their commitment to minimising the risk of Modern Slavery in their own supply chains and operations;
5. include Modern Slavery considerations in procurement processes as guided by legislation and best practice;
6. ensure the City of Sydney's standard contracts contain clauses requiring Suppliers to take reasonable steps to identify, assess and address Modern Slavery risks within their operations and supply chains and comply with Modern Slavery Laws;
7. where Modern Slavery risks are identified that are outside of the City of Sydney's direct control, engage with key stakeholders to leverage its influence and encourage positive and permanent change;
8. implement a confidential reporting process to enable members of the community and City of Sydney Employees to raise concerns about potential or suspected Modern Slavery in the City of Sydney's supply chain;
9. take reasonable steps to investigate reports of Modern Slavery by providing appropriate supports, confidentiality and other safeguards to protect the interests and wellbeing of victim-survivors and work towards providing or enabling access to effective grievance mechanisms and remediating deficient practices to mitigate the risks of recurrence;

10. develop and deliver a three-year Modern Slavery Implementation Plan to achieve compliance with the NSW Anti-slavery Commissioner's Guidance on Reasonable Steps, including development of suitable targets which will evolve as the City's maturity increases;
11. develop and undertake a Salient Modern Slavery Risk Assessment, through engaging stakeholders and identifying risks. This will be incorporated into the Modern Slavery Implementation Plan, to be adaptive to emerging risks, and to assist in changes to business models, strategies and practices;
12. establish a relationship and continue to cooperate with the NSW Anti-slavery Commissioner, through sharing information and support;

Training and capacity building

The City of Sydney will ensure that relevant Employees have the knowledge, training, tools and capacity to comply with the obligations to reduce risks of Modern Slavery. Training will be regular and appropriate to an Employee's role.

The City of Sydney will regularly review its performance on Modern Slavery risk management and integrate lessons learned from stakeholder engagement, reporting mechanisms and peers.

Reporting

The City of Sydney will report to the Audit Risk and Compliance Committee on how it is meeting its Modern Slavery commitments.

As required by its statutory obligations, the City of Sydney will report annually on:

- actions taken in response to any significant operational issues raised by the NSW Anti-slavery Commissioner; and
- steps taken to ensure that goods and services procured by and for the council during the year were not the product of Modern Slavery, as required in the Guidance on Reasonable Steps, as well as submit a copy of its Annual Report.
