

This apartment building is taking part in a food scraps recycling service

CITY OF SYDNEY

Dear resident

This building is taking part in the City of Sydney's food scraps recycling service. Thanks to residents in buildings like this one, we've saved truckloads of food scraps from landfill and turned them into a useful resource. We'd love you to get involved too.

How to use the food scraps recycling service

1. Register and order your free kitchen caddy and liner bags at city.sydney/food-scrap-caddy
2. When your kitchen caddy arrives, line it with the compostable bags provided and find a spot for it in your kitchen, like the bench top or in the fridge.
3. Start collecting your food scraps. This includes all food waste and leftovers such as meat, dairy, bones, fruit, vegetables, tea bags and coffee grounds.
4. Regularly empty your kitchen caddy into the maroon lid food scraps bin or tub in your building. Give your caddy a quick clean and start refilling it with food scraps again.
5. If you move out, leave your clean caddy and leftover liner bags on your kitchen bench for the next resident.

Why take part in the food scraps recycling service?

Food waste makes up one-third of the average rubbish bin. By recycling your food scraps you'll help reduce waste to landfill and greenhouse gas emissions. Not only that, your food scraps can get turned into useful resources like compost, animal feed and green energy.

For more information about the food scraps recycling service go to cityofsydney.nsw.gov.au/foodscraps

Thank you and happy recycling!

Register and order your free kitchen caddy and liner bags.