Introduction

The purpose of this Privacy Management Plan (Plan) is to explain how the City of Sydney (the City) manages personal and health information in accordance with NSW privacy laws. This includes the:

- Privacy and Personal Information Protection Act 1998 (NSW) (PPIP Act)
- Health Records and Information Privacy Act 2002 (NSW) (HRIP Act).

This Plan also explains who you should contact about the personal and health information collected and held by the City, how information can be accessed and amended and how privacy complaints are handled. Additionally, this Plan is used to guide the City's employees in how to deal with personal information.

What this Plan covers

The City is required to have a Plan under s33 of the PPIP Act which must include:

- information about how the City develops policies and practices to ensure compliance with the PPIP Act and the HRIP Act
- how employees are made aware of these policies and practices
- the City's internal review procedures
- anything else the City considers relevant to the Plan in relation to privacy and the personal and health information it holds.

Any reference to employees in this Plan includes permanent (whether full-time or part-time), temporary and casual employees, agency contractors, volunteers, trainees and students on work placements.

When this plan will be reviewed

This Plan will be reviewed every two years. It will be reviewed earlier if any legislative or administrative changes affect the management of personal and health information by the City.

About the City

The City of Sydney Council has responsibilities under the Local Government Act 1993 and other Commonwealth and NSW laws including the City of Sydney Act 1988, the Environmental Planning and Assessment Act 1979, the Public Health Act 2010, the Companion Animals Act 1998, the State Records Act 1998 and the Government Information (Public Access) Act 2009.

Councils exist to:

- provide a representative, informed and responsible decision-making body
- develop the local community and its resources in a socially just and environmentally responsible way
- ensure that local public services and facilities respond effectively to community needs.

City of Sydney Functions

Under the Local Government Act 1993, the City's charter requires it:

- to provide for development in the local area
- to provide for local services and facilities that benefit ratepayers, residents and visitors
- to protect health and provide for the welfare, wellbeing and interests of the local community
- to represent and promote the interests of ratepayers and residents
- to establish and support organisations and programs targeting the local community
- to protect the environment and improve local amenity
- to attract and provide infrastructure for commerce, tourism and industry
- to manage, improve and develop resources available to the community.

More detailed information is available on the City's website.

What is personal and health information

Personal information

Personal information is defined in s4 of the PPIP Act as any information or opinions about a person where that person's identity is apparent or can be reasonably ascertained. Personal information can include a person's name and address, details about their family life, their sexual preferences, financial information, fingerprints and photos.

What is not personal information under the PPIP Act?

There are some kinds of information that are not personal information, these include:

- information about someone who has been dead for more than 30 years
- information about someone that is contained in a publicly available publication
- information or an opinion about a person's suitability for employment as a public sector official.

The Privacy and Personal Information Protection Regulation 2019 also lists other information that is not personal information, such as information about someone that is contained in:

- a document in a library, art gallery or museum
- State records under the control of the NSW State Archives and Records
- public archives (within the meaning of the Copyright Act 1968 (Cth)).

Health information

Health information is a more specific type of personal information and is defined in s6 of the HRIP Act. Health information can include information or an opinion about a person's physical or mental health or disability, or a person's express wishes about the future provision of his or her health services or a health service provided to a person.

Health information can include, for example, a psychological report, blood test or an x-ray, results from drug and alcohol tests, and information about a person's medical appointments. It can also include some personal information that is collected to provide a health service, such as a name and telephone number.

How the City collects and manages personal and health information

The City is committed to building good privacy practices into its decision making, as well as the design and structure of its information systems, business processes and services. The City considers privacy at all stages of initiatives, from conception through to the development and implementation phase and is committed to developing an organisation-wide awareness of privacy and supporting the principles of data minimisation and informed consent.

Collection of personal information

The City collects personal information in a variety of ways in order to perform services and functions. The City assesses the level of personal information that is appropriate to be collected on a case-by-case basis with a view to minimising the amount of personal information it collects and manages.

In this section, a reference to personal information is also a reference to health information.

Personal information may be collected from:

- members of the public
- NSW and Commonwealth public sector agencies
- businesses
- non-government organisations
- employees
- medical professionals.

Contractors acting on the City's behalf may also collect personal information. The City includes clauses in its contracts that require contractors to comply with relevant privacy obligations.

The City has a range of functions requiring or involving the collection of personal information, including:

- levying and collecting rates
- providing services, for example, child care, libraries and waste collection
- consultation with the community, businesses and other stakeholders
- assessing development and major project applications
- recording, investigating and managing complaints and allegations
- site inspections and audits
- incident management
- enforcing regulations and legislation
- issuing approvals, consents, licences and permits
- providing funding grants
- maintaining the non-residential register of electoral information
- employment
- fitness for work.

Privacy Management Plan

Personal information may be collected by the City in many ways including:

- incident reports
- medical assessment reports
- submissions
- application forms
- CCTV footage
- public registers
- financial transaction records
- contracts
- customer enquiries
- telematics
- online services
- contact tracing under NSW Public Health Orders.

Personal information may be collected electronically, in writing, over the telephone and in person.

Personal information provided to the City

Individuals may provide the City with personal information, for example when they make an application for employment, make enquiries and when the City delivers services to them. This can include names, contact details, opinions, health conditions, family relationships, housing or tenancy information, financial information, work and education details. Individuals may also provide the City with personal information about other people.

Unsolicited information

Unsolicited information is personal or health information received by the City in circumstances where the City has not asked for or required the information to be provided. Such information is not deemed to have been collected by the City but the access, storage, use and disclosure Information Protection Principles in this Plan will apply to any such information.

Privacy Protection Notice

Under s10 of the PPIP Act, when the City collects personal information from an individual, such as their name, address, telephone number or email address, the City must take such steps as are reasonable in the circumstances to ensure that, before the information is collected or as soon as practicable after collection, the individual is made aware of:

- the purposes for which the information is being collected
- the intended recipients of the information
- whether the supply of the information is required by law or is voluntary
- any consequences for the individual if the information (or any part of it) is not provided
- ways the individual can access and correct the information
- the name and address of the agency that is collecting the information and the agency that is to hold the information (the City is a public sector 'agency' under s10 of the PPIP Act).

To ensure the City complies with the PPIP Act, a Privacy Protection Notice will be included on/in all City forms, letters, documents and other records (e.g. electronic, digital) that request and/or collect personal information from individuals. Where possible, individuals providing personal information will be given the opportunity to consent to the terms of the Privacy Protection Notice and, in particular, be provided with an 'opt out' check box for 'Other uses', for such additional uses of the personal information as are considered reasonably necessary by the City for the exercise of City functions.

City employees are encouraged to consult with the City's Governance team to see that each Privacy Protection Notice is fit for purpose and complies with our privacy requirements. The City's Governance team provides guidance on and reviews draft Privacy Protection Notices at the City for consistency, accuracy and compliance with the PPIP Act's Information Protection Principles.

The City's Privacy Protection Notice template

PRIVACY PROTECTION NOTICE

Purpose of collection: This information is being collected for the purpose of (specify the purpose(s) for which the information is being collected e.g. providing a community program and service).

Intended recipients: City of Sydney employees (and specifically list any other organisations/outsourced service providers e.g. arborists, NSW Health etc.) are the intended recipients.

Supply: The supply of this information (is required by law or is voluntary – delete one) If you are unwilling to provide this information, the City of Sydney may be unable to provide access to City of Sydney services.

Access/Correction: Please contact Customer Service on 02 9265 9333 or at council@cityofsydney.nsw.gov.au to access or correct your personal information.

Storage: The (insert name of business unit) at the City of Sydney, located at 456 Kent Street, Sydney NSW 2000, is collecting this information and the City of Sydney will store it securely (where possible include a specific storage term and statement that will then dispose of appropriately within (specify timeframe e.g. six months) (which is a business unit responsibility), as the City is committed to keeping personal information no longer than necessary).

Other uses: The City of Sydney will use your personal information for the purpose for which it was collected and may use it as is necessary for the exercise of other functions. Other uses include (specify other necessary uses and include opt out check boxes where possible).

For further details on how the City of Sydney manages personal information, please refer to our Privacy Management Plan (<https://www.cityofsydney.nsw.gov.au/about-us/privacy>).

Storage, access and accuracy of personal information

Personal information and health information are both sensitive information and are stored electronically and in hard copy files.

The following applies to information the City holds:

- only City employees and authorised third parties can access personal information
- employees will take reasonable steps to ensure personal information is accurate before using it
- a person may access or amend personal and health information the City holds about them
- personal information will be kept no longer than necessary and disposed of appropriately.

Please refer to pages 15-17 for details of exemptions, directions and codes of practice that may affect the above.

Electronic information will be stored on secure information systems that require individual logins. New systems will be assessed for compliance with the PPIP Act and HRIP Act. Hard copy files and sensitive information will also be securely stored.

Use and disclosure of personal information

The City will use your personal information for the purpose for which it was collected and may use it as is necessary for the exercise of other council functions where it is satisfied that the personal information is reasonably necessary for the exercise of such functions.

For example, your information may be used to understand community and customer needs to improve our services. The City may also use your information to let you know about services or other information available (e.g. newsletters) and may share your information within other divisions of the City and authorised outsourced service providers to expedite services to customers.

Employees use the personal information collected to:

- deliver services
- conduct research
- provide advice
- continually improve services.

The City does not disclose personal information without consent, unless the disclosure is:

- for a purpose directly related to the reason the City collected it, and the City has no reason to believe the individual would object,
- necessary to prevent or lessen a serious and imminent threat to someone's life or health, or
- permitted under the PPIP Act, the HRIP Act or other legislation.

The City will not disclose sensitive personal and health information about a person's ethnic or racial origin, political opinions, religious or philosophical beliefs, trade union membership, health or sexual activities without consent, unless such disclosure is necessary to prevent or lessen a serious and imminent threat to life or health.

Public registers

The PPIP Act governs how the City should manage personal information contained in public registers. Under the PPIP Act a public register is a register of personal information that is required by law to be made, or is made, publicly available or open to public inspection. Enquiries about public registers can be made via the City's website.

Part 6 of the PPIP Act prevents City employees from disclosing personal information held on public registers, unless the information is to be used for a purpose relating to the purpose of the register.

The City's public registers include:

- Land register
- Contracts over $250,000 awarded by the City
- Register of investments
- Register of disclosures of interest
- Register of development consents
- Register of planning agreements
- Contributions register
- Record of building certificates
- Public record of licences
- Record of impounding
- Non-residential roll and roll of occupiers and ratepaying lessees.

Suppression of personal information

Any person whose personal information is recorded in a public register has the right to request that their personal details be suppressed.

The City will comply with the request if it is satisfied the person's safety or wellbeing would be affected by not suppressing the information. Applications to suppress personal details from a public register should be made in writing to the City's Chief Executive Officer.

How to access and amend personal and health information

The PPIP Act and the HRIP Act give people the right to access and amend their own information.

Members of the public wishing to access or amend personal and health information the City holds about them should contact the City's Customer Service Centre. The City does not charge a fee to access and amend personal and health information.

Limits on accessing or amending information

The City is prohibited from providing one person access to another person's personal and health information. However:

- under s26 of the PPIP Act, a person can give the City consent to disclose their personal information to someone that would not normally have access to it;
- under s7 and s8 of the HRIP Act, an "authorised person" can act on behalf of someone else; and
- the City may be authorised to disclose health information, such as in the event of a serious and imminent threat to the life, health and safety of the individual, to find a missing person or for compassionate reasons.

Data breaches

What is a data breach?

A data breach occurs when there is a failure that has caused or has the potential to cause unauthorised access to the City's physical or electronic information or data, such as:

- accidental loss or theft of information or equipment on which such information is stored (e.g. loss of a paper record, laptop or USB stick)
- unauthorised use, access to or modification of data or information systems to gain unauthorised access or make unauthorised changes to data or information systems
- accidental or unauthorised disclosure of personal information (e.g. email containing personal information sent to incorrect recipient)
- personal information posted on the City's website without consent
- access to City data by an authorised system user for unauthorised reasons (e.g. a City employee looking up information in a corporate records management system for personal reasons in breach of the City's Code of Conduct)
- accidental disclosure of user login details through phishing
- malware infection
- disruption to or denial of IT services.

A data breach most commonly, but not exclusively, results in unauthorised access to, or the unauthorised collection, use, or disclosure of personal information.

Responding to a data breach

Manager Risk & Governance, Chief Data & Information Management or IT Security & Risk Manager must be promptly informed of any data breach and will assist in the assessment and management of the breach, including any reporting under NSW's voluntary data breach reporting scheme, in accordance with the Information and Privacy Commission's Voluntary Data Breach Notification guidelines.

The City determines whether personal information has been accessed and/or disclosed to determine what response should be taken. The City's default position is to voluntarily report data breaches to the Privacy Commissioner.

The City will determine the seriousness of a breach by:

- considering the type of data held
- whether personal or health information was disclosed
- the number of individuals affected
- the risk of harm that could be caused to both individuals and the City by the breach.

The City will take the following steps to manage a data breach:

Contain	Actions will be taken to immediately contain the breach and minimise any resulting damage.
Evaluate	The type of data involved in the breach will be assessed, and the risks associated with the breach, to determine next steps. This will include an assessment of who is affected by the breach, what was the cause of the breach, and any foreseeable harm to the affected individuals/organisations.
Notify	Individuals/organisations affected by the breach will be notified as soon as possible to enable them to take any steps required to protect themselves, and to advise them of their rights to lodge a complaint with the Privacy Commissioner. The City's default position is to voluntarily report data breaches of personal and health information to the Privacy Commissioner.
Act	Any additional action identified to mitigate risks will be implemented.
Prevent	Preventive efforts will be implemented based on the type and seriousness of the breach.

Review rights and complaints

The City encourages the informal resolution of privacy issues before undertaking the review process. Issues can be raised informally with the City and complaints will be managed under the City's Complaints and Feedback Procedures. Further details on the City's complaints and feedback procedures can be found on the City's website.

Internal review

Individuals have the right to seek an internal review under Part 5 of the PPIP Act if they believe that the City has breached the PPIP Act or HRIP Act relating to their own personal and health information. Individuals cannot seek an internal review for a breach of someone else's privacy, unless they are authorised representatives of the other person. An internal review is an internal investigation that the City conducts into a complaint. The City will assess whether or not it has complied with its privacy obligations, and then tell the applicant of its findings and if it will take any further action.

Internal review process

Applications for an internal review must:

- be in writing
- be addressed to the City's Privacy Contact Officer - Manager Risk & Governance
- specify a postal or email address in Australia to which the City may send its review response
- be made within six months from first becoming aware of the conduct that is the subject of the application.

The City recommends that applicants use the Information and Privacy Commission's Privacy Complaint: Internal Review Application Form when submitting a written request for a review with the City.

Privacy Management Plan

The Privacy Contact Officer or their delegate will conduct the internal review. If the internal review is about the conduct of the Privacy Contact Officer, the Director Legal & Governance will appoint another person to conduct the internal review.

The Privacy Contact Officer will refer to the Privacy Commissioner's guidance materials including the IPC Checklist: Internal review when carrying out an internal review.

The City aims to:

- acknowledge receipt of an internal review within 5 working days
- complete an internal review within 60 calendar days.

Once the review is completed, the City may take no further action, or it may do one or more of the following:

- make a formal apology
- take remedial action
- provide undertakings that the conduct will not occur again
- implement administrative measures to reduce the likelihood of the conduct occurring again.

The City's Privacy Contact Officer will notify the applicant in writing within 14 days of completing an internal review of:

- the findings of the review
- the action proposed to be taken by the City and the reasons for taking that action (if any)
- the right of the applicant to have those findings, and the City's proposed action, administratively reviewed by the NSW Civil and Administrative Tribunal.

The Privacy Commissioner's role in internal reviews

The Privacy Commissioner has an oversight role in how agencies handle privacy complaints and is entitled to make submissions to the City regarding internal reviews.

If the City receives an internal review application, it will:

- notify the Privacy Commissioner of the application as soon as practicable after receiving the application
- keep the Privacy Commissioner informed of the progress of the internal review
- inform the Privacy Commissioner of the findings of the review and the action proposed to be taken by the City in relation to the matter.

An individual can also make a complaint directly to the Privacy Commissioner about an alleged breach of their privacy.

External review by the NSW Civil and Administrative Tribunal (NCAT)

If an internal review is not completed within 60 days, or the applicant is not satisfied with the findings of an internal review or the action taken by the City in relation to the review, the applicant has 28 days to apply to NCAT to review the conduct or decision complained about. NCAT's role is to assess whether or not the City complied with its privacy obligations.

Promoting privacy

The City reinforces compliance with the PPIP Act and HRIP Act by:

- endorsing this Plan and making it publicly available on its website
- providing a copy of this Plan to relevant oversight bodies such as the Audit, Risk and Compliance Committee
- reporting on internal reviews to the Privacy Commissioner
- identifying privacy issues when implementing new systems, services and processes.

Employee awareness

The City ensures that its employees are aware of and understand this Plan and how it applies to the work they do, so that they understand what their privacy obligations are, how to manage personal and health information in their work and what to do if they are unsure.

The City promotes awareness of privacy obligations among employees by:

- publishing this Plan and information about privacy on the City's intranet and website
- communicating regularly with employees about privacy
- ensuring City policies comply with privacy legislation through policy authors consulting with the City's Information Protection Coordination Group (IPCG) and Legal & Governance Division
- including the Plan in induction packs
- offering induction and refresher training
- providing targeted advice to employees and business units
- highlighting and promoting the Plan at least annually, during Privacy Awareness Week.

When employees have questions about how to manage personal and health information under this Plan, they may consult with their manager, the Privacy Contact Officer (Manager Risk & Governance) or the Governance team.

Public awareness

This Plan provides information to members of the public about how the City manages personal and health information. The Plan is publicly available as open access information under the GIPA Act.

The City promotes public awareness of the City's Privacy Management Plan by:

- publishing the Plan on the City's website
- providing hard copies of the Plan free of charge on request
- translating the Plan into other languages and alternative formats on request
- referring to the Plan in its privacy notices
- informing people about the Plan when responding to enquiries about personal and health information.

Managing personal and health information under legislation

This section contains a general summary of how the City must manage personal and health information under the Privacy and Personal Information Protection Act 1998 (PPIP Act), the Privacy and Personal Information Protection Regulation 2019, the Health Records and Information Privacy Act 2002 (HRIP Act) and other relevant legislation.

The Privacy and Personal Information Protection Act

The PPIP Act sets out how the City must manage personal information.

Information protection principles

Part 2, Division 1 of the PPIP Act contains 12 Information Protection Principles (IPPs) with which the City must comply. The following is an overview of the principles as they apply to the City.

Collection

1. The City collects personal information only for a lawful purpose that is directly related to the City's functions and activities.
2. The City collects personal information directly from the person concerned. The City will not collect personal information from third parties unless the individual has authorised collection from someone else or, in the case of information relating to a person under the age of 16 years, the information has been provided by a parent or guardian.
3. The City informs people why their personal information is being collected, what it will be used for, and to whom it will be disclosed. The City will tell people how they can access and amend their personal information and any possible implications if they decide not to give their personal information to us.
4. The City ensures that personal information is relevant, accurate, is not excessive and does not unreasonably intrude into people's personal affairs.

Storage

5. The City will store personal information securely, keep it no longer than necessary and dispose of it securely and in accordance with the City's obligations under the State Records Act 1998 and any other requirements for the retention and disposal of personal information. Personal information is protected from unauthorised access, use or disclosure.

Access and accuracy

6. The City is transparent about the personal information it holds, why it is used, and the right to access and amend it.
7. The City allows people to access their own personal information without unreasonable delay or expense.
8. The City allows people to update, correct or amend their personal information where it is necessary.
9. The City will take reasonable steps to ensure that personal information is relevant and accurate before using it.

Use

10. The City only uses personal information for:
- the purpose for which it was collected and directly related purposes
 - to prevent or lessen a serious or imminent threat to the life or health of the individual to whom the information relates or of another person
 - other purposes as specified under 'Exemptions and the Privacy Code of Practice for Local Government' below, or
 - any other purpose only with consent.

Disclosure

11. The City does not disclose personal information without consent, unless disclosure is:
- for a purpose directly related to the reason we collected it, and where City has no reason to believe the individual would object
 - necessary to prevent or lessen a serious and imminent threat to someone's life or health, or
 - permitted under the PPIP Act, Privacy Codes of Practice under the PPIP Act or the HRIP Act or other legislation.
12. The City does not disclose sensitive personal information without consent, e.g. ethnicity or racial origin, political opinions, religious or philosophical beliefs, health or sexual activities or trade union membership, unless the disclosure is necessary to prevent a serious and imminent threat to the life or health of the individual concerned or another person.

Exemptions and the Privacy Code of Practice for Local Government

1. Exemptions to the Information Protection Principles (IPPs)

Part 2, Division 3 of the PPIP Act contains exemptions that may permit the City to not comply with IPPs in certain situations. These include the following:

- the City is not required to comply with IPPs 2-3, 6-8, or 10-12 if lawfully authorised or required not to do so
- the City is not required to comply with IPP 2 if the information concerned is collected in relation to court or tribunal proceedings.

For example, s 23(3) of the PPIP Act provides that the City is not required to comply with collection requirements if the information concerned is collected for law enforcement purposes such as the issue of a penalty infringement notice.

2. Privacy Code of Practice for Local Government

The City must comply with the Privacy Code of Practice for Local Government as prepared by the Office of the Privacy Commissioner and revised on 20 December 2019.

- Under the Privacy Code of Practice for Local Government where it is reasonably necessary, the City may indirectly collect and use personal information to confer an award, prize, or similar form of personal recognition on the person about whom the information relates.
- The Privacy Code of Practice for Local Government also permits the City to use personal information for a purpose other than the purpose for which it was collected where the use is in pursuance of the City's lawful and proper functions and the City is satisfied that the personal information is reasonably necessary for the exercise of those functions.

Privacy Management Plan

For example, the Rates Record that the City holds under s602 of the Local Government Act may be used to:

- notify neighbours of a proposed development
- evaluate a road opening or
- evaluate a tree preservation order.

In addition, the City may use personal information for other specific purposes where the City is satisfied that the information is reasonably necessary for another function such as:

- understanding community and customer needs to improve our services
- letting customers know about services or other information available (e.g. newsletters)
- sharing personal information within other divisions of the City and authorised outsourced service providers to expedite services to customers.

Offences

Offences can be found in s62-68 of the PPIP Act. It is an offence for the City to:

- intentionally disclose or use personal information for an unauthorised purpose
- supply personal information that has been disclosed unlawfully
- hinder the Privacy Commissioner or their employees from doing their job.

The Health Records and Information Privacy Act

The HRIP Act sets out how the City must manage health information.

Health privacy principles

Schedule 1 of the HRIP Act contains 15 Health Privacy Principles ('HPPs') that the City must comply with. The following is an overview of the principles as they apply to the City.

Collection

1. The City collects health information only for a lawful purpose that is directly related to the City's functions and activities.
2. The City ensures that health information is relevant, accurate, is not excessive and does not unreasonably intrude into people's personal affairs.
3. The City collects health information directly from the person concerned or with consent from the person concerned.
4. The City informs people why their health information is being collected, what it will be used for, to whom it will be disclosed, how it can be accessed and amended and any possible implications of not providing health information.

Storage

5. The City stores health information securely, keeps it no longer than necessary and destroys it appropriately. Health information is protected from unauthorised access, use or disclosure.

Access and accuracy

6. The City is transparent about the health information it holds, why it is used, and the right to access and amend it.

Privacy Management Plan

7. The City allows people to access their own health information without unreasonable delay or expense.
8. The City allows people to update, correct or amend their health information where necessary.
9. The City ensures that health information is relevant and accurate before using it.

Use

10. The City only uses health information for the purpose it was collected for unless it has consent for its use for another purpose.

Disclosure

11. The City does not disclose personal information without consent, unless disclosure is permitted under the HRIPA or other legislation;

Identifiers and anonymity

12. The City may use unique identifiers for health information.
13. The City allows people to remain anonymous where it is lawful and practicable.

Transfers and linkage

14. The City does not transfer health information outside of NSW.
15. The City does not currently use a health records linkage system.

Exemptions to the Health Privacy Principles (HPPs)

Exemptions are located mainly in Schedule 1 to the HRIP Act, and may permit the City not to comply with HPPs in certain situations. For example, the City is not required to comply with HPPs 4-8, and 10 if lawfully authorised or required not to do so.

Health Records and Information Privacy Code of Practice 2005

The Health Records and Information Privacy Code of Practice 2005 applies to the City. It permits, in certain limited circumstances, the collection, use and disclosure of health information between human services agencies without the consent of the person to whom the health information relates. A human services agency is a public sector agency that provides welfare services, health services, mental health services, disability services, drug and alcohol treatment services, housing and support services and/or education services.

Offences

Offences can be found in s68-70 of the HRIP Act. It is an offence for the City to:

- intentionally disclose or use health information for an unauthorised purpose
- offer to supply health information that has been disclosed unlawfully.

Government Information (Public Access) Act 2009 (GIPA Act) and Government Information (Public Access) Regulation 2009

Under this Act and Regulation members of the public can apply for access to information held by the City. This information may include personal or health information. A request for City records may be made through the City's website.

City employees - name and position title

Schedule 4 of the GIPA Act also provides that information about a City employee, including their name and non-personal contact details (such as position title and their public functions at the City) is not personal information for the purposes of the GIPA Act.

Independent Commission Against Corruption Act 1988

Under this Act the City must provide information to the Independent Commission Against Corruption about allegations of fraud and corruption that may contain personal and/or health information.

Public Interest Disclosures Act 1994 (PID Act)

Under the PID Act any public official can make a public interest disclosure to the City.

The PID Act requires that information that might identify or tend to identify a person who has made a public interest disclosure should be protected.

State Records Act 1998 and State Records Regulation 2015

This Act and Regulation authorise the State Records Authority to establish policies, standards and codes to ensure that NSW public sector agencies manage their records appropriately.

City of Sydney Act 1988

This Act requires the City to collect personal information to maintain the non-residential register of electoral information.

Referrals to external agencies under other relevant legislation

Under the Ombudsman Act 1974, the Independent Commission Against Corruption Act 1988, and the Crimes Act 1900, the City can provide information, including personal and health information, to the:

- NSW Ombudsman
- Independent Commission Against Corruption
- NSW Police.

Consultation

In preparing this updated Plan, Governance included recommendations from the Information and Privacy Commission resulting from the last review of the Plan in 2019. Governance also consulted with the City's Information Protection Coordination Group (IPCG), Customer Service, Data & Information Management, Corporate HR and Legal Services. They reviewed this Plan and provided comments.
